Quentin & Dundee

Partner Portal Terms of Use

Information for collaborators using Q&D’s engagement-specific workspaces and materials.

Effective September 26, 2026

PUBLIC

1. Purpose and Current Availability

Quentin & Dundee (Q&D) works with institutions, organizations, and campaigns on strategy and execution. The public partner portal pages provide contact and access guidance for institutional relationships. They do not currently provide account authentication, password recovery, document upload, or access to a private workspace.

Do not enter or send a password, verification code, or sensitive file through these public pages. For help with an existing engagement or an invitation you have received, contact hello@quentindundee.com or your established Q&D contact using independently verified details.

2. Engagement Terms

Viewing these pages or sending a request does not create a client relationship, approve access, or amend an engagement. A written engagement agreement governs the services, fees, responsibilities, confidentiality, and ownership arrangements it covers. Any future restricted workspace may have additional terms presented when access is offered.

3. Responsible Use

Use the public pages only for lawful purposes. Do not impersonate another person, attempt to access restricted systems or information, interfere with the website, introduce malicious code, or bypass security controls. When requesting assistance on behalf of an organization, identify your role and share only information you are authorized to provide.

4. Confidential Information and Privacy

Keep initial support requests limited to the information needed to identify the engagement and explain the issue. Ask your Q&D contact to agree on an appropriate exchange method before sharing confidential institutional records or personal information. These public pages are not a secure document-transfer channel.

The Website Privacy Statement explains information handled through the public website and its contact channels. Project-specific data processing and confidentiality responsibilities are addressed in the applicable engagement agreement and any relevant project notices. A website inquiry does not authorize Q&D to use institutional records for unrelated purposes.

5. Materials and Permissions

Public materials may be used for reference and internal evaluation with attribution and notices preserved. Q&D and other rights holders retain ownership of their respective names, marks, and materials. Access to a public page does not grant permission to disclose restricted client materials, use another organization's brand, or suggest an endorsement or affiliation.

Materials you send remain subject to your rights and any applicable agreement. Submit only information you are authorized to share. Contact legal@quentindundee.com with permission or contractual questions.

6. Availability and Information

We may update or remove public partner-access pages and their content. We do not promise uninterrupted or error-free availability. Public descriptions are general information and do not guarantee a particular institutional or campaign outcome. Confirm instructions with your established Q&D contact before acting on consequential matters.

The Website Terms of Use and Service Disclosures provide further context for the public website. Nothing on these pages overrides a signed engagement agreement or removes rights that applicable law does not allow to be waived.

7. Security and Impersonation

Verify unexpected access invitations, changed payment instructions, and requests for sensitive information using independently established contact details. Q&D's public website is quentindundee.com. Do not rely solely on a logo, sender display name, or links within an unsolicited message.

Report suspected impersonation or a security concern to security@quentindundee.com. Include enough context to identify the issue, but do not send passwords, verification codes, or unnecessary personal information. Our Fraud & Impersonation Awareness notice provides additional guidance.

8. Accessibility, Questions, and Updates

If you encounter an accessibility barrier, contact accessibility@quentindundee.com and describe the page and the assistance you need. For partner-access assistance, contact hello@quentindundee.com. For questions about these terms, contact legal@quentindundee.com.

Changes to these public-page terms will be posted with a revised effective date. They do not change an existing engagement agreement. New functionality that handles accounts or private documents will require terms and privacy information appropriate to that functionality before it is offered.

Quentin & Dundee

QUENTINDUNDEE.COM